Small Town

"Nature's Escape"

The region of the Haliburton Highlands is known for its rugged character, towering forests and friendly people. Haliburton offers fishing, golf, wilderness hiking and canoeing, downhill and cross country skiing, dog sledding, snowmobiling, ATV touring, artists studio tours and a wide variety of other outdoor activities. Along its north edge, Haliburton borders Algonquin Provincial Park, Ontario's oldest and fourth largest park. The village of Haliburton, though small in population, offers special artistic, sporting and general interest events throughout the year.

- Located on Head Lake, at the southern edge of Algonquin Provincial Park
- Population: approximately 5,500
- 160 km north of Toronto

Notable features:

- Vibrant arts community - from pottery to watercolors, oils to glassblowing, you'll see it all in the many galleries and exhibits
- Wolf Centre at the Haliburton Forest and Wildlife Reserve
- Clean air... fresh water... friendly neighbours... nature's escape from the big city
- Very popular cottage and resort district due to the many lakes that surround it
- Founded on logging and forestry, main industry now is tourism
